Brief Summary of Unit:

In this unit, students will explore houses around the world and match a family to their ideal vacation home. Students will examine their own expectations about homes in a global context. This unit was designed to be taught with materials from Holt Spanish 1 iExprésate!, but can be used without access to the source materials. Students should already have a basic understanding of family vocabulary and conjugation of regular and stem-changing verbs. At the end of the unit, students should be able to discuss how where they live influences how they live. Students will gain knowledge by practicing listening, speaking, and writing about where they and others live, where objects are located using estar + prepositions of place, household responsibilities, giving their opinion using gustar and parecer, and describing what is happening using the present progressive.

However, if someone picks a slip that says ";QUÉ LÁSTIMA!" they keep THAT slip and have to put all the rest of their slips back. The person at the end of the time with the most slips wins.
